Plan Commission grants rezoning

By Dave Gosnell
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — A controversial property on Johnson Road has been given a green light to be rezoned.

The city Plan Commission on Monday voted unanimously to rezone 2057 Johnson Road, formerly the Midtown Pharmacy building, from residential to commercial use.

The action, if approved by the City Council, will allow a day-care center to start a business in the building. It would also allow the variance petition for parcels on a block that is zoned residential.

At the same time the Plan Commission met, the property was also being considered for a zoning variance by the Zoning Board of Appeals. The ZBA approved the variance petition after meeting for about two minutes.

Nearby residents opposed the rezoning, they said, because they fear other property in the area will go commercial and because they think the rezoning was not handled properly.

Spokeswoman for the Clark-Mercer Neighborhood Federation, Sandy Crites, of 8 Mercer Drive, told the commission that the petition had been "ramrodded through the system."

Crites said nearby residents had received letters informing them about the Sept. 21 meeting on Sept. 3. She said owners of property bordering the pharmacy building had not agreed at the time to join the rezoning petition.

The other property was needed to join in the petition because the pharmacy building property does not on its own meet a one-acre minimum size requirement for rezoning.

Crites said the other property owners had not signed the petition when the letters were sent. She said legal action may be taken because of the petition questions.

"We have double-checked with legal counsel... and he feels that this has not been done properly."

Maybe it's time for the courts to decide," Crites said.

A recent Press-Record/Journal article related that the owners of the bordering property had not signed the petition as of Sept. 16. The petitions were signed by the owners by Monday.

Commission Chairman Phillip Theis said Assistant City Attorney Ed Fitzhenry had offered an opinion that signatures of property owners were not necessary on rezoning petitions.

Under Illinois law, residents living within a 300-foot radius of a rezoning consideration must be informed of hearings on rezoning petitions.

Crites has said that, when the property was considered for a rezoning other times this year, some residents were not informed of the commission meetings.

George Filcoff Jr., a trustee for the Midtown property, which is held in trust by Central Bank of Granite City and whose owners are not identified, said the property should be rezoned because past court decisions involving nearby property indicated the area is meant to be commercial.

Filcoff cited a case involving 2021 Johnson Road in which the Madison County Circuit Court ruled against Granite City in a rezoning case. In that 1977 case, the city denied a rezoning petition to rezone property from residential to commercial.

The denial was overturned and the court found that the city had not produced convincing evidence that the denial was related to the health, safety, morals or general welfare of the area.

"All the commercial areas are going in there right and left," said the city public official. The Midtown property down, Filcoff said. He also said the Midtown property owners has not been informed that the property would automatically revert back to a residential classification when the pharmacy closed.

State Street will be given legal status

GRANITE CITY — Part of State Street is not a street, legal-ly.

No official record exists of a section of State Street being a city street but there will be soon. The City Council at its Sept. 15 meeting hired a consultant, Shepard, Morgan & Schwab Inc., to legally dedicate the street area which runs between the Wilson Park area and Granite City High School.

"There is no legal description of State Street on record," said City Engineer Roger Hadley. Hadley said Shepard, Morgan & Schwab will survey the street and produce a plat to be placed in city and county records. The cost will be $1,200, based on the company's low bid.

The section of the street bordering Wilson Park and the high school is an extension of State Street and has been in use and maintained by the city for many years.

Chairman of the council's Street and Alley Committee, 2nd Ward Alderman Jim Schuman, said the dedication of the street had been overlooked.

Dedication

FLAG RAISING at the Old Six Mile Museum was held Sunday afternoon. Members of Drusilla Andrews Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, conducted dedication ceremonies in cooperation with the Old Six Mile Historical Society. State Rep. Sam Wolf presented an Illinois state flag and the first Granite City National Guard presented an American flag and a flag pole. Council to keep receipts for travel allowances

By Dave Gosnell
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — Aldermen must account for their travel expenses.

The City Council passed a resolution on Tuesday requiring the aldermen to list how they spend their allocated travel money and to keep receipts.

The motion, which carried 8-5, was made by 5th Ward Alderman Jake Varadian.

Some aldermen criticized Varadian's proposal because it did not come with a set of guidelines.

Second Ward Alderman Jim Miller said he agreed with accounting for travel allowances but questioned how Varadian's voucher form would be handled.

"It would show a willingness to cut expenses. But I want some guidelines," Miller said.

Some aldermen asked Varadian who at City Hall would keep the records.

Varadian said his motion simply meant that any city employee and the aldermen would turn the completed form into the city after returning from a city-paid trip. He did not say what office would keep the voucher records and asked for a vote.

"With no guidelines, I can't vote for that," said 7th Ward Alderman Jeff Worthen.

Aldermen will be attending the Municipal League convention in Chicago Oct. 16-18. Each alderman has been allocated $350 for the trip, a reduction of $150 from last year.

Sixth Ward Alderwoman Judy Whitaker, who voted against the proposal, said she is not against turning in receipts, but does not think $350 is enough for the trip.

Whitaker said she expects the trip to cost more than $350 and that some aldermen cannot afford to pay the extra amount themselves. She said the meeting is a valuable experience for new aldermen.

"This is not 'play' money. You are there to learn how to help your city," Whitaker said.

Whitaker criticized Varadian and the Finance Committee, which he chairs, for cutting the allocation and then bringing in the voucher proposal.

"I think we've tried to make ourselves out to be martyrs. They voted for raises for everyone else. I don't think it's fair," Whitaker said.

Voting against the proposal were: 1st Ward-Everett Moran, 2nd Ward-Jim Miller, 3rd Ward-Lloyd Bailey, 4th Ward-Judy Whitaker, 7th Ward-Jeff Worthen.

Fourth Ward Alderwoman Sharon Forjak was absent.

Legislators want state to 'get tough' on AIDS virus

Illinois Public Health Director Bernard Turnock has been given the "Tinker Bell Award of the AIDS crisis" by a group of state legislators at news conferences in Chicago and St. Louis.

"Just as in Peter Pan, Director Turnock thinks that if he shuts his eyes and claps his hands and wishes 'real hard,' everything will turn out okay. This isn't Never-Never Land. This is Illinois and the people are real," Illinois House Assistant Minority Leader Penny Pullen, R-Park Ridge, said this week.

She is a sponsor of pending legislation to require AIDS tests of state prison inmates, convicted sex offenders, intravenous drug abusers, hospital patients and couples seeking marriage licenses.

Joining her at the Chicago news conference was Rep. John McNamara, D-Oak Lawn, sponsor of a pending measure to add "sexual abstinence until marriage" to the subjects taught in school health classes.

Rep. Ron Stephens, R-Casseyville, a Granite City area businessman, made a similar announcement in St. Louis; Stephens is chief co-sponsor of the Pullen proposal and was chief legislative spokesman for their bill to regulate the tracing and notification of sexual contacts of AIDS carriers. AIDS is acquired immune deficiency syndrome, a fatal disease.

The lawmakers called on Gov. James Thompson to sign the legislation. "We implore the govern-nor to look at the facts about AIDS, the long and respected tradition of the public health profession, and his duties as the state's chief public official."

"We call on the governor to move beyond the paralysis of fear which grips his director and act to protect the people of Illinois now — before thousands more are infected and sentenced to a shortened life of lonely fear and pain."

"Regardless of what the governor decides to do, however, the people of Illinois are entitled to better stewardship from the man who already has the power to act responsibly but has refrained. Dr. Turnock is required by law to act to protect the people of Illinois from infection by communicable diseases," Rep. Pullen said.

"But he has repeatedly refused to act in the face of the deadly AIDS epidemic."

"Now he is even asking the governor to veto the AIDS Public Protection Package, which was passed overwhelmingly by both houses of the General Assembly and is the most comprehensive legislation in America to get tough with this determined virus."

Turnock denies inaction but opposes portions of the legislation.

Thompson is expected to act soon on the package, which also would require hospitals and blood banks to set up procedures for blood recipients to recruit

Downtown neighbors open doors

Seven houses and two downtown buildings will be on the annual Downtown Neighborhood Restoration Society's house tour from 1 to 6 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 27. Entertainment and food booths will be on the parking lot of the First Presbyterian Church, 22nd Street and Delmar Ave., with craft booths set up in the church basement.

School group may discuss AIDS

The concept of a regional classroom for children with the AIDS infection may have been discussed Tuesday at a new committee set up by Regional Superintendent of Schools Harry Briggs. Briggs said he hopes the committee can develop sample policies and procedures for representatives to take back to present to their district school boards.

City zoning laws were mystery

City Attorney Mark Goldenberg and the chairman of the city Plan Commission, Phillip Theis, said a video store, at 2005 Johnson Road, owned by Jeffery and Barbara Cruse, was probably granted commercial rezoning because the commission at the time did not know about a one-acre minimum size requirement. Theis said that when he became chairman in October 1986, he started enforcing the law.

Small towns in nation are shrinking

Travel across Illinois and the rest of the Midwest and one painful sight you will see over and over is the shrinking of small towns. A few are thriving, many more are barely surviving, and many are gradually dying.

It is not good news for America.

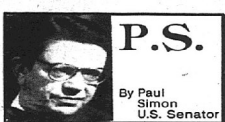

I speak with prejudice because most of my life has been spent in small-town America. My address is Route 1, Makanda, Ill., population 400.

Small towns are not paradise. You will find in them the same prejudices and fears and shortsightedness that exist in larger communities, and because they are small towns, sometimes these faults are more visible.

But in these small towns you will usually find more concern for one another. The economic segregation of urban and suburban America has not hit these small towns. The son and daughter of the wealthiest person in the community go to school with the son and daughter of the school custodian and the son and daughter of the person who is unemployed. We learn from each other.

When these small towns shrink, where do people go? They head for the big cities, hoping for opportunity, often ill-equipped to cope with the sudden new environment of the urban area, compounding the problems of urban America.

What can be done? First, the problems of rural communities cannot be separated from the problems of American agriculture. So long as we continue policies that do not encourage better prices through greater use of our agricultural producing capacities, farm families and the small towns they surround will not prosper.

P.S.

U.S. Senator

Second, we need federal policies that encourage the development of a small and varied industrial base in rural communities so that young people who grow up there will have more of a chance for working and staying in those communities.

Are both of these goals illusions that have no chance to become reality? Not at all.

Let me give you just one example of what can be done for each of these goals.

Sen. Tom Daschle of South Dakota has joined me in introducing a bill that calls for a gradual increase of ethanol in our gasoline. Right now, 7 percent of the gasoline sold in the nation has 10 percent ethanol. Just that 7 percent has raised the price of corn about 11 cents a bushel. Our proposal would require that, by 1992, 50 percent of the gasoline sold in the nation would be 10 percent ethanol. One estimate shows that would raise the price of corn about 11 cents a bushel — still leaving it lower than a few years ago but a substantial improvement over the present price. And it would make us less dependent on Middle Eastern oil, save the federal treasury billions of dollars, and make our air cleaner.

That one step would be a substantial help to this nation's farms and small communities.

To encourage small companies that manufacture products in these smaller communities, we could and should — take steps to stimulate more export sales.

Today, a handful of corporations do about 60 percent of our nation's export sales. A major reason is that smaller corporations, particularly those in rural communities, have a difficult time getting bank credit for export expansion.

If the federal government were to provide a partially guaranteed loan for companies that expand exports, we would create more American jobs, particularly in the smaller communities where exports seem like a distant dream because of the credit hurdles.

That is one example of what can be done for each goal. Many other examples could be given.

If we have leadership that is concerned and creative we can do much, much better.

Small town America is not thriving. But the present shrinking of small town America can be reversed. The nation will be much better off when it happens.

Senators should oppose nomination

To the editor:
After my letter to your newspaper, I have received numerous comments claiming that Judge Bork is not an ideological Supreme Court nominee.

One article I was sent claimed that only Bork's opponents were ideological. It argued that Bork, instead, supports the "original intent" of the framers of our Constitution.

In fact, the quite political doctrine of "original intent" is being advocated by Attorney General Meese as a means to achieve a partisan agenda. Bork's nomination is designed to implement that political goal.

Doctrines like "original intent" or the old "strict construction doctrine" advocated to thwart the constitutional rights of minorities in the past, are not really legal doctrines. They are political doctrines trying to couch themselves in legal terminology to gain wider public acceptance.

There is a long history of their rejection by the United States Supreme Court for just that reason. The Supreme Court was never designed to implement political agendas. It is the impartial legal tribunal of a government of laws.

When the Court avoids political controversy and speaks instead from a broad consensus with sound, impartial constitutional analysis, then it is acting in the manner the Constitution intends. Then it safeguards a nation of laws and not of men.

At the greatest crisis in history concerning our status as a nation of laws, the Watergate constitutional crisis, Bork was willing to implement the will of one man and fire the special prosecutor.

Notwithstanding the fact that two higher level, and more political, appointees in the Department of Justice had refused such an improper directive, Bork acted to extend the crisis.

Had Bork joined in that principled refusal to fire a special prosecutor, who was investigating what history has shown was an obstruction of justice that occurred in the Oval Office of the White House, I would be far more confident than I am now about his respect for our constitutional rule of law.

I think those who want to see a pinnacle to the Reagan presidency would be far better advised to write President Reagan and ask him to withdraw Judge Bork. He still has time to nominate someone who can obtain respect as a non-ideological nominee.

If not, it is likely that Bork will join the one in five Supreme Court nominees who are rejected by the Senate.

President Johnson's nominee, Judge Fortas, was perceived as being too ideological. Some feared he would tip the Court too far to the left side of the political spectrum.

Sen. Strom Thurmond led a filibuster which resulted in the withdrawal of the Fortas nomination.

A 1986 survey by Peter Hart found, by a 78 percent to 16 percent margin, that Americans endorsed the position that "it is important for the Senate to make sure that judges on the Supreme Court represent a balanced point of view."

Bork fails this test. His nomination should be rejected by our Senators Alan Dixon and Paul Simon, who will cast crucial votes on this nomination.

'Addiction' to shopping grows

I love to window shop. One of my favorite pastimes is to browse store windows and store shelves.

I can possess with my eyes all these pretty things for which I have absolutely no need and no room at home.

Few men share my hobby. Earl Hollandsworth of East Texas did. He and I used to cruise every aisle of every floor of Neiman-Marcus, bottom to top. It can take hours.

At the top we'd have a dish of ice cream — and call it a happy day.

I understand Tammy Bakker is a compulsive shopper. She, however, has to buy things. She says she has a psychological "need" to buy things, especially costume jewelry.

I have no need to buy and rarely do.

The Wall Street Journal, for obvious reasons, is interested in the difference between browsers and buyers and what motivates each. That publication recently sent Betsy Morris on a tour of shopping malls. She returned with a report that may be worrisome.

Paul Harvey

It seems very many American don't know what they're shopping for, don't need what they're shopping for, but buying things — especially with a credit card — gives some people a high similar to what others get from drugs.

Next to TV watching, shopping is America's favorite of all pastimes.

Miss Morris' research indicated that American adults average six hours a week "shopping."

You've seen bumper stickers reading: Born to Shop.

Thomas O'Guinn, professor of advertising, University of Illinois, says, "I would term it a national problem."

A Purdue University study revealed that when credit cards are displayed — as they often are at the cash register or checkout counter — many consumers respond like Pavlovian dogs. Something about the sight of those credit cards makes them ignore prices; they may willingly pay three times as much for the same item.

Prof. O'Guinn believes "consumers are in an endless, hopeless search for happiness through the acquisition of things."

And this hedonistic trap spares nobody.

The man who has everything will spend $100,000 for something which promises to make him young again. For others, shopping alleviates loneliness.

But all the while — for whatever reasons Americans are mortgaging their futures in favor of a present in the present.

Yencho to study in Japan

Stephen Yencho, son of Edward and Mary Evelyn Yencho, 2571 Waterman Ave., left Sept. 18 to attend the University of Tokyo as a post-graduate foreign research student. He has been awarded a Hewlett-Packard Fellowship to take classes and perform research in the Department of Precision Machinery Engineering at the university. The work will involve the application of design to manufacturing systems. Classes will begin Oct. 7 and he will attend the University of Tokyo for at least a year, following which he will return to employment with Hewlett-Packard, Palo Alto, Calif., where he has worked for the past two and a half years at the Manufacturing Research Center. Before departing, he visited for a week with his parents in Granite City. He graduated as salutatorian of the 1979 class of Granite City High School North, graduated from the University of Illinois in 1983 with a bachelor's degree in mechanical engineering, and received a master's degree in manufacturing systems engineering from Stanford University, Stanford, Calif., in 1985.

2nd Mitchell fire station being built

On Aug. 18, the Mitchell Fire Protection District announced at its regular meeting that it had entered into a contract under which Helmar Homes Inc. of Granite City will construct a new fire station on property owned by the district at 5123 Maryville Road.

The new building has been designed by Henderson and Associates, Architects, of Edwardsville and construction has started in the new structure. The land for the new building was donated to the fire district by the Metro East Sanitary District.

The Fire Protection District has for some years been endeavoring to locate a second fire station in the western portion of the area it serves. The new station will enable the district to respond to emergency calls more rapidly than when operating from a single location.

Genealogy catalog now on microfiche

Genealogists and history researchers will now be able to find out about materials in the Shawnee Library System's special genealogy and Illinois collections by using a microfiche reader.

The latest catalog of the system's genealogy holdings has been produced in a format that is less expensive than the usual paper copy. Producing the catalog on microfiche makes it possible for every public library in the state to have a copy.

The microfiche catalog was produced under a grant from the Illinois State Library. Included are more than 6,000 titles relating to genealogy or to state history. Of these, approximately 3,700 have been acquired since the previous catalogs were produced on paper in 1976 and 1980. The Granite City Public Library has a copy of the microfiche catalog. Most of the books listed may be borrowed from the Shawnee Library System through the Granite City library.

The district will continue to utilize the fire station in Mitchell, as well as the new building, which is scheduled for completion within the next four months. Part of the district's fire equipment will be transferred to the new building, and it is anticipated that additional equipment will be acquired in the near future.

The Mitchell district serves Chouteau Township and portions of Edwardsville Township. It currently operates from its fully-owned station located in Mitchell on Chain of Rocks Road.

The district provides fire protection services to the area it serves in conjunction with the Mitchell Volunteer Fire Department, which provides manpower to the district.

The fire chief is Lee Paul.

Arson suspected

SMOKE BILLOWS from an upstairs window as Madison firefighters battle a blaze that started about 11:35 p.m. Wednesday in a building at 1245 Iowa St. Fire Chief Robbie Robbins found a ladder in the rear, leading to an upstairs balcony where he discovered an open door. Authorities believe the fire began on a center staircase and that some type of flammable liquid was used to ignite the blaze. Officials said the building, owned by Irv Comensky, was heavily damaged. The Madison County Arson Squad was dispatched to investigate. Firemen were at the scene for four hours.

Madison police

Knife wielding alleged

As Matthew Windsor, 1014 Greenwood St., and Jerry Langley, 24, of 1017 Washington Ave., argued at 9:42 p.m. Sept. 17, Langley allegedly picked up a knife and advanced toward Windsor, who ran across the street to the Greenwood Tavern. Patrons there then held the door closed to keep Langley outside. Langley allegedly then broke one of the windows. He was charged with aggravated assault and criminal property damage and was released on $204 bail.

Child assaulted by man

A girl, 3, in Madison is believed to have been sexually assaulted by a 21-year-old man living with the family, authorities were told at 3:50 p.m. Sept. 17. The child was taken to Cardinal Glennon Hospital in St. Louis and was admitted as a patient. The Illinois Department of Family and Children Services is investigating the allegations, police said.

Apartment burglarized

Carrie Latham, 113 Greiner Homes, returned home at 5 p.m. Sept. 8 and found the front door of her apartment had been pried open. Missing were a 25-inch color television, a 19-inch color TV, a microwave oven and a stereo component system.

Thief takes fishing poles

Two fishing poles and a tackle box, valued at more than $250, were taken from the parked car of Brian Papa, 1802 Fourth St., early Sept. 9.

Woman hit near station

Sonia Garrett of Collinsville and Orlando Woolfolk, 24, of 717 Bissell St. were seen arguing in front of the Madison police station at 3:32 a.m. Sept. 10. Woolfolk allegedly struck and shook her, with her head striking the building. He was arrested at the scene and charged with battery on a complaint signed by Garrett and also was booked on a St. Clair County warrant for trespassing. He was released at 10:40 a.m. after posting $102 bail.

Man sues steel firm

EDWARDSVILLE — A man is seeking a judgment of up to $15,000 against Granite City Steel, claiming he was injured while working there two years ago.

Daniel Churovich filed a suit against the firm Sept. 11 in Madison County Court.

Churovich, an employee of SISCO Inc., was working on Granite City Steel property on or about Sept. 11, 1985, when he says he was required to move large steel plates without mechanical assistance, causing him to sustain injuries to his back.

Churovich claims it was Granite City Steel's duty to provide him a safe place to work and to provide cranes and hoists to aid in moving the steel. The steel firm was negligent, he claims, adding that he has paid large medical bills for treatment of the injuries.

Special education funding to include 3-year-old children

Illinois has been awarded about $77 million in federal funds for special education with the approval of two annual plans submitted by the State Board of Education to the U.S. Department of Education.

The federal funds were granted for (1) an amendment to the three-year (fiscal years 1987-1989) state plan under Part B of the Education of the Handicapped Act and (2) for a fiscal 1988 pre-school grant.

The state received about $11 million in the pre-school grant. It funds programs serving handicapped children ages 3-5.

Under the three-year plan, which outlines state support for special education, Illinois received about $66 million in federal funds.

Distribution of the federal dollars to special education cooperatives and school districts is based on their enrollments of special education students.

The plan and the grants are available for public review Monday through Friday during regular business hours (8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.) at the state board's three offices: 100 North First St., Springfield; 100 West Randolph St., State of Illinois Center in Chicago; and 214 St. Louis, South 10th St. in Mt. Vernon.

Preliminary scholastic test registration will start here

High-school sophomores and juniors are being encouraged to register beginning Oct. 1 for the Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test of the National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test (PSAT-NMSQT).

Students in the upper quarter of their class are particularly being urged to take the test.

The test will be administered Tuesday, Oct. 20, at Granite City High School.

By taking the test, juniors can enter the competition for National Merit Scholarships. They also may then participate in the College Board's Student Search Service, which gives students an opportunity to hear from colleges they might not otherwise investigate.

The test measures verbal and mathematical aptitude and gives students an opportunity to find out what the Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) is like, according to Sandy Kopsky, a counselor at the high school. Mrs. Kopsky said the test is an important step in making college plans.

With their score reports, students will receive a copy of "About Your PSAT-NMSQT Scores," a booklet containing information on estimating SAT scores, finding out where to get and how to use detailed information on colleges and financial aid, and planning for financial aid.

Students may register beginning Oct. 1 at the high school guidance office before and after school. Student bulletins will be available upon payment of the $5.50 testing fee.

The test is co-sponsored by the College Board and the National Merit Scholarship Corp.

Tables do exercise at boutique

Table Tone Figure Boutique, 3717 E. Crossroads Center, offers differences between traditional concepts of exercise and the motorized calisthenic concept, said Davis Roedger, owner.

The business offers five motorized tables that support a person's body weight and moves body parts repetitiously in a condensed amount of time. There is no strenuous exercise, thus eliminating strain and fatigue, he said.

"A minimum amount of effort is needed. Motorized calisthenic exercise works to tone and firm muscles. The muscles are stretched and flexed like an elastic band. As they are stretched and flexed they become toned and firm and body 'inch loss' results," he explained. "Because the body weight is supported and does not have a resistance to fight against, muscle mass diminishes in size rather than increasing, and muscles acquire a sleek look."

"You do not get sore, sweaty, or tired because you are not fighting against gravity. Muscle strength is gained through isometrics on each table," he said. "There is also a therapeutic side to the tables."

"The tables give you increased circulation, with a wider range of motion and mobility of the joints. With each treatment, energy levels increase and you feel more rested and relaxed."

"Being healthy and fit involves a good diet and exercise program. Our tables are no better than doing traditional calisthenic exercises on the floor five to six days a week, but it is difficult to be consistent for long enough periods in this traditional manner."

"With our program you can be consistent with minimal effort. Those who care about keeping their bodies in shape or who work and have families to go home to can find two hours a week to come to a parlor for two weekly treatments," he said.

Drive gift by Cencom Cable

Cencom Cable Television presented an $8,115 gift to the St. Louis Muscular Dystrophy Association during MDA's annual Labor Day telethon.

The money was raised during a special Cencom sales promotion in July and August, according to Dave Niswonger, director of marketing. Cencom contributed $5 to MDA for every customer installation fee generated during the promotion.

St. Louisans contributed $1,000,624 during this year's telethon, according to Aleta Porter, district director for the St. Louis chapter of the MDA. Porter said this is a 20 percent increase. Nationally, the telethon raised more than $39 million.

"This significant commitment should be a great source of pride to the company as well as the cable industry," Porter said. "The gift illustrates Cencom's community spirit and it will provide needed funding for MDA's research, patient care, and summer camp programs."

Cencom serves 175,000 cable subscribers in St. Louis County, Southwest Illinois, Kentucky and North and South Carolina. The company also owns and operates the St. Louis Cardinals Cable Network, which produces live cablecasts of 50 of the baseball club's home games each season.

Enterprise zones can increase area to 12 square miles

A new law has increased the maximum number of enterprise zones in Illinois and expanded the allowable area of the zones.

"The enterprise zone program continues to be an unqualified success for Illinois, attracting business and industry to communities through incentives that nurture success," Gov. James Thompson said. "Businesses are most vulnerable in their start-up periods — and that is the time when the state's enterprise zone incentives have the greatest impact."

"By working closely with communities on realistic development plans, many areas have experienced revitalization and growth which could not have gotten off the ground without the enterprise program."

Thompson signed Senate Bill 981, amending the Illinois Enterprise Zone Act to increase the maximum area of a zone from 10 to 12 square miles.

Unidentified body found at boat dock

The body of a white man, 25 to 40 years old, was found about 3 p.m. Sunday at the old Madison North Boat Dock by two dove hunters.

Madison police were called to Bissell Street and Illinois 3 after the body was found by the hunters in a wooded area near the dock. The man, about 5-foot-11 in height and weighing 180 to 210 pounds, was attired in a green, red and white plaid shirt, dark green trousers and white tennis shoes. He had black hair.

Police found a wallet containing $10, a ticket to the Gateway Arch, a pocket watch with a picture of the Statue of Liberty on its face and an American eagle on the back of the case, and a Sanyo portable radio.

A blue steel semi-automatic pistol was found about two inches up from his right shoulder. Police Chief Charles Bridick said the badly decomposed body showed no marks of violence. An autopsy was conducted Monday.

Bridick is asking anyone with information about the identity of the man to call Madison police at 876-4300.

Library slates fall children's program

GRANITE CITY — The children's department of the Granite City Public Library has scheduled a variety of fall programs.

Story time begins at 11 a.m. Wednesday, Sept. 23, in the children's room located in the main library, 2001 Delmar Ave., and at 11 a.m. Thursday, Sept. 24, at the branch library, 2020 Johnson Road.

An evening story time will be held every other Thursday at 7 in the children's room starting Sept. 24. These sessions will last 30 minutes. Children ages 3 and older may attend.

Evening movies will be shown the last Monday of each month at the main library and the last Tuesday of each month at the branch library, both starting at 7. The movies will last approximately one hour. Winnie the Pooh films will be shown on Sept. 28 and 29.

Craft programs will be held at 2 p.m. in the children's room on the second Saturday of each month starting Oct. 10. Children must be in at least the first grade to participate.

Appropriate school officials if a school-aged child is found to be infected.

"Director Turnock opposes these measures except Rep. McNamara's abstinence education bill," Rep. Pullen said.

"The director adamantly opposes providing a mechanism for advising a school district they have a problem, even though his own department issued guidelines for school personnel in dealing with an AIDS-infected child. How are teachers and school nurses to follow the guidelines if they aren't allowed to know?"

"Historically, it's been commercial," Melton said.

Critics said at the commission meeting that numerous local newspaper articles in the early 1980s, when the city's zoning ordinance was adopted, indicated many people supported zoning that area as residential. She also said past commission and City Council minutes indicated support for the area to be residential, though many realtors opposed that zoning classification.

Support group to help grandparents

By Bill Bagby

MADISON — Parents always have many questions about raising their children. And, so do grandparents who must raise their grandchildren.

Belle Warden of Madison is trying to organize a support group for grandparents who are raising their grandchildren.

Part of the group's purpose will be to seek answers to some of the questions the grandparents face, she said.

Warden and her husband have raised their 4-year-old granddaughter since she was born. Warden said. The couple raised the care of the Illinois Division of Children and Family Services, East St. Louis region, who live Warden said she's talked to several grandparents who are raising their grandchildren and they favor the idea of starting the support group.

Many of the questions Warden and other grandparents have, she said, concern the legal rights of the youngsters and grandparents, she said.

Group members could also discuss the everyday problems facing grandparents who find themselves, "at an older age, raising a child again," Warden said.

"It limits the things you can do," she said.

There are 131 children under the care of the Illinois Division of Children and Family Services, East St. Louis region, who live with other family members, said Anthony Jenkins, regional administrator of the DCF's, The East St. Louis region includes the Quad City Area.

In most situations, Jenkins said, children end up living with other relatives because their parents experience difficulty in providing care for their children.

Other reasons include lack of maturity of the parent to raise a child or parents' need to work or enlist in the military because they can't find employment, he said.

Area grandparents raising their grandchildren and interested in participating in the support group may call Warden at 876-0290.

Baur, 43, has held positions with several banks since entering the field of finance in 1967 as a management trainee at the First National Bank of Atlanta.

Clean air group opposes new clean air crackdown

By Buck Collier
Staff affiliate

A business group says a new, tougher clean air bill doesn't take into account the culprit most responsible for pollution in the St. Louis metropolitan area—the weather.

The measure, which quietly is working its way through Congress, would do more harm than good to the economic health of this area, said George Carpenter, an official of the Clean Air Working Group, a business organization based in Washington, D.C.

Carpenter said last week that while the legislation would grant more time for cities with unacceptable levels of pollution—such as St. Louis—to comply with federal standards, it actually would impose more restrictions that cities and business probably wouldn't be able to meet.

"It's going to be putting together hundreds and hundreds of regulations," Carpenter said.

Because most of the major sources of air pollution have been dealt with, the federal government will be turning to small businesses in an effort to cut emissions, Carpenter said. He cited bakeries and dry cleaning operations as likely targets of the new clean air bill.

The main concern of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency is the amount of ozone hovering over St. Louis and about 20 other cities. The cities have until the end of this year to reduce their levels of ozone and carbon monoxide to an acceptable standard or face economic sanctions. Those sanctions could come in the form of a withholding of money for highway construction and sewer work or a ban on new industry in the area.

According to Curt Long, president of Associated Industries of Missouri, the bill doesn't recognize the progress made in cleaning up the air in St. Louis.

"The St. Louis area has achieved significant reductions in ozone Long said.

Sam Leonard, director of automotive emissions control for General Motors, said it's unclear how the legislation would affect industry. However, he said it could lead to a decrease in production "or, in the long run, shut down the plant."

Long argued that federal officials should allow for the role that weather plays in an area's air quality.

He pointed to the days that St. Louis was in violation of federal standards, noting that five other during the hottest days of the year. "The law should recognize that we have the right to analyze" statistics and determine what caused the violation," he said.

The legislation could come to a vote in the Senate by the end of this year, Carpenter said.

Relatives of alcoholics suffer different fate

By Chris Wayland
Staff affiliate

—For some, the term co-dependent is simply another psychological buzz word bandied about. For others, however, it means finally having an identity.

Co-dependents, those people who have been impacted through their relationship with an alcoholic or addict, are "coming out of the woodwork" since the term began getting publicity, said Randy Davis, a psychologist.

Davis was in St. Louis this week to promote the book, "Letting Go With Love," as part of Normandy Osteopathic Hospitals National Osteopathic Medicine Week, Sept. 13-19. Davis is promoting the book on behalf of the author, who is a member of Al-Anon and chooses to keep her anonymity. He serves as consultant to the Outreach Services at College Hospital in Cerritos, Calif., and is the clinical director of the Youth Response Unit at the hospital, which deals with chemically dependent teenagers.

Co-dependency has just begun to be talked about openly in the last two or three years, Davis said.

"For many years, professional psychologists barely were aware of this vast pool of suffering," he said. "We concentrated on making the alcoholic/addict better, and thought that when we were able to do that the families and friends—those that we call co-dependents—would be and large begin to feel better, too." Co-dependents often were not treated, Davis said, adding, "We didn't know them for a long time."

The psychologist said there are 22 million practicing alcoholics/addicts. If each alcoholic effects the lives of five other people, 110 million people, or co-dependents, are impacted, he said.

Julia H., a pseudonym for the author of "Letting Go With Love," is a co-dependent. Her husband of 25 years now is a recovering alcoholic. Julia suffered many years before deciding to get help. Although she is an Emmy Award-winning television writer, Julia felt no success and her identity did not extend beyond her alcoholic husband, Davis said.

Julia had long wanted her husband to quit drinking. But when he said he was going to AA, she told him he was not an alcoholic. When her husband joined AA and became sober, Julia thought her own bliss would surely follow, but it did not, Davis said.

After years of taking care of family responsibilities, the spouse often feels neglected and, because the recovering alcoholic is so happy, wishes the co-drinking or would be punished, Davis said.

And for many spouses, once their mate is sober they find they no longer are needed by the addict.

Buenos Aires holds South American flavor, lure of fiesta

By Mary Rubano
Journal correspondent

Exciting architecture, friendly, courteous people and a sophisticated cosmopolitan atmosphere await travelers in Buenos Aires, Argentina.

Visual beauty is everywhere, ranging from the historic to the strikingly modern. The sounds and smells have been tempered with a South American flavor and there is a feeling of fiesta in the air.

Argentina is a nation with a rich, Spanish heritage strongly influenced by varied European—notably Italian—immigration. Spanish is the national language, but in Buenos Aires, it is nearly always possible to find English speaking clerks in restaurants, hotels and major shops.

Buenos Aires, a chic, bustling city, is not unlike New York or Paris with crowded streets day and night. There is, however, a genuine feeling of safety.

Street crime against tourists is rare in Buenos Aires and one does not feel threatened in a crowd. It would not, of course, be a good idea to invite trouble by wearing extravagant jewelry on crowded streets at night.

Shopping in Buenos Aires' many fine shops is usually a bargain, especially when one pays in American dollars. Visa and some other charge cards are accepted, but often the price will be less if American dollars are used, rather than charge cards or Argentine money.

Two- or four-night stays in Tokyo as an independent traveler are available for as little as $179, not including air fare. The package includes round-trip airport transportation and a half-day city tour with an English-speaking guide.

Other cities with similar tour arrangements include Kyoto, Thailand and the Philippines. Consumers can choose an escorted tour or independent travel.

The nine escorted tours that American offers to Japan begin with the two-day Japan Preview, starting at $446 per person. Other Orient tours permit the traveler to discover Hong Kong for $145 per person, Beijing sightseeing at Nijo Castle and the Higashi-Hoganji Temple.

native Argentine onyx and some jewelry are good bargains. Purchases generally must be carried home, not sent.

Dining can be a wonderful adventure and reasonable in price as compared to restaurants in the United States. A leading beef-raising country, steaks are the most popular entree on most menus.

Since Argentina is a world leader in beef export, it is a common practice in restaurants not to serve beef once a week to conserve its main product.

Chicken, fish, veal, goat and seafood entrees as well as many others are available at all times. A delicious specialty dessert in Buenos Aires is 'charlotta,' a thin cake with ice cream and melted chocolate.

Restaurants open for dinner at 8 p.m. and gain volume as the night falls. Dining at 10 or 11 p.m. is popular with Argentines, and suits and ties are generally worn in downtown restaurants at night.

Later in the evening, downtown streets become crowded. Musicians, mimes or even break dancers gather to entertain crowds. Everyone mills around to join in the fun and to reward the entertainers with applause and money.

Sidewalk cafes are very popular. It's a prime spot to watch people and traffic go by while sipping coffee or nibbling on 'medialunas,' a lemon-flavored crescent roll.

Traffic must be experienced to be believed. Driving in Buenos Aires would be a precarious adventure for a visiting American. For one thing, lane markers on the wide avenues appear to be merely decorations because no one stays in the lanes.

Traffic moves freely from one lane to another and back again, depending on the circumstances. It even sometimes extends over the center line and into the lane of oncoming traffic. Argentine drivers seem to understand the rules, or lack of them, and everyone simply moves over a little to let hurried vehicles pass on.

In Buenos Aires it isn't a matter of who is the most aggressive driver; courtesy prevails. Electric stoplights serve a nebulous purpose. If there is no traffic coming the opposite way, the driver may simply pause at a red light, look both ways, then continue through the intersection. Yet, there seems to be few traffic accidents and rarely does one see a traffic ticket given.

A tourist need not drive, however, because Buenos Aires has efficient bus, subway and train systems, as well as good cab service.

Culture thrives in Buenos Aires. Libraries and museums are popular, as is the world-renowned Colon Theatre. The National Symphony Orchestra and City Opera Company perform in this theater, except during a period in summer when it is closed.

Parks in northern Alabama offer fine fall foliage tour

By Tom Adkinson

"Resort" and "state park" are not mutually exclusive terms, as you can find out at three destinations across the top of Alabama.

Three resort state parks are tucked into the hills, lakes and mountains here, and they are easily accessible stops on a fall foliage tour.

One route from St. Louis to all these lakes you first to Nashville with a stop at Opryland or the Grand Ole Opry on the way, and then down Interstate 55 or Interstate 24 and Interstate 59 to some surprising territory that most people don't associate with the Heart of Dixie.

One portion of the Appalachian Mountains rises out of northern Alabama, and it's here that you can find Joe Wheeler State Resort Park, Lake Guntersville State Resort Park and De Soto State Resort Park.

Joe Wheeler is very close to an impoundment of the Tennessee River near Rogersville, and the lodge is perhaps the prettiest you will find anywhere. The brownstone lodge sits so close to an arm of Wheeler Lake that you are tempted to cast a fishing line from the balcony attached to each of the 75 guest rooms.

Also part of the lodge is a spacious restaurant that affords a panoramic view of the lake and all the cruiser, sailboat and bass boat activity generated by the park's 134-ship marina.

Transient boaters even can tie up right outside the restaurant and head inside for a meal of fresh Tennessee River catfish.

The park (complete with trails, tennis courts and a golf course) is set amid rolling hills that are a prelude to even more dramatic geography just to the east at Lake Guntersville State Resort Park.

Lake Guntersville is another impoundment of the Tennessee River, and the park that bears its name is impressive.

A 100-room lodge is perched atop a ridge that towers over the sprawling lake. One set of vacation cabins is on the same ridge, while another set of cabins is directly beside the lake. Add to this a marina, canoe rentals, a swimming pool and an 18-hole golf course and you soon discover this really is a resort.

Several years ago, I met a vacationing Midwesterner at Lake Guntersville State Resort Park who remembered the pre-resort days. He began camping there in 1957, when one of the few facilities was a 16-site campground along the lake.

"If that little campground was filled when you arrived, the park manager would be there to greet you with a smile, an ax and a bucksaw," he said. "Then, he'd tell you to go out and cut your own campsite out of the brush."

That pioneer spirit has gone the way of all resorts. Even the park's campground now is a modern 32-site hotel.

Shifting eastward again, you find terrain that is even more rugged than that at Lake Guntersville when you get to De Soto State Resort Park. This park is proof that Ruby Falls and Rock City in the Chattanooga, Tenn., area are only the beginning of Lookout Mountain's attractions.

Lookout Mountain stretches from Chattanooga to Gadsden, Ala., (more than 80 miles), and it is easily argued that its prettiest portion is wrapped up on an oddly shaped park named for Spanish explorer Hernando De Soto.

The park spreads for 35 miles along the top of the mountain, from De Soto Falls (which drops more than 100 feet into a huge basin) to the Little River Canyon

(which is said to be the deepest gorge east of the Mississippi River).

It covers territory so mountainous that you would swear it is someplace besides Alabama.

For leaf-watchers, the accommodations are clustered near the town of Fort Payne, where you will find a 25-unit motel, an 82-site campground and 20 cabins and chalets. A fork of the Little River flows within a few hundred yards of some of the cabins.

The Little River is the only river in the country that flows its entire length on top of a mountain. It begins in northwest Georgia, forms cascades at De Soto Falls and Little River Falls and finally empties into Weiss Lake. It is an Alabama Wild and Scenic River.

A major attraction at De Soto is about 20 miles of trails that twist through the park. On the west bank of the river are several miles designated as rhododendron trails featuring 15 small waterfalls. While rhododendron blooms in spring, the mountain hardwood trees put on a colorful show of autumn yellows, reds and browns.

Travel literature about the entire region is available from the Alabama Mountain Lakes Association, 1516 Central Parkway SW, Decatur, Ala. 35601. The phone number is (205) 350-3300 or you can contact the individual parks:

Lavender best kept indoors during cold

By Robert J. Dingwall
Journal correspondent

A reader asks if English lavender is hardy for this area.

Lavender plants are probably the public's favorite herb and are advertised in a number of catalogs across the country. The best time to order them is for spring delivery.

Lavender plants like a well-drained soil with a light texture that contains plenty of organic matter. It is a moderate feeder so avoid overfertilization. In the Midwest, with the freezing and thawing conditions that can occur at any time from late fall through early spring, overwintering of lavender may be difficult—especially if soil conditions are not favorable.

Cuttings may be made in late summer and rooted in a mixture of 3 parts per liter to 1 part sphagnum peat moss. Keep the lavender in a strong light and do not allow it to dry out at any time. Cuttings should be well-rooted in three to four weeks, at which time they should be planted into clean clay or plastic pots for growing indoors in a cold frame or cool window sill for the winter.

Lavender also may be grown in pots year-round and even trained to miniature trees for recent use on the dinner table in the summer. Bees love the flowers so use care when working around them.

Fungus: the good, bad, the ugly

By Robert J. Dingwall
Journal correspondent

Fungi are primitive plants that are unable to make their own sugars because they do not contain chlorophyll, the substance that gives plants their green color. They consist of a network of threads called mycelium.

Most fungi decompose dead plant matter, converting it to simpler chemicals. This is no minor feat; in nature, fungi have the No. 1 role in the decay of plant material. But some fungi cause plant diseases by invading living plants. They usually are spread in three ways: through the soil, by splashing water and by the wind.

When moisture and temperature reach certain levels, fungi begin to grow and in spring and summer, their expansion can be quite rapid. Bark mulch applied around plants holds moisture and aids in keeping soil somewhat cooler during these hot periods. It is used to help in controlling weeds, and as it breaks down through the action of fungi, it returns food to the soil, which promotes better growth.

A reader writes about a messy substance growing around the base of some plants where pine bark has been used. This is a fungus in an active stage, though it is easily seen. Though unsightly, this fungus does not harm the plant.

The best way to eliminate it is to remove just the mass of fungus growth and dispose of it in a plastic bag. Another effective method is to rake it over when first observed. The extra air that is incorporated into the mulch will cause it to disappear. It also can be controlled with a fungicide.

This fungus is relatively short-lived. If disturbed a few days after it is noticed, a powdery black material, the spores, will fly up. They will land some where nearby, depending on the wind. If and when moisture and temperature are ideal, they will develop into the same type of mass-like growth.

Mildew is one of the harmful types of fungus. It attacks many plants, and may affect leaves, flowers and even the stems. It appears when humidity and moisture are high. Plant parts with mildew look as if they have been dusted with a fine white powder. Without some help from the gardener, the plant may wither and even die. This is quite familiar to gardeners who grow roses, phlox, zinnias and many types of fruit trees.

Mildew is relatively easy to control if plants are dusted or sprayed with a good fungicide when first noticed. It is important, though, to spray well under the leaves and then on top. Spraying may need to be repeated every seven to 10 days for good control.

Many plant types offer varieties that are immune or nearly so, and gardeners are advised to look for these when making their selections. Good cultural practices also ward off many problems. A healthy plant is far more disease-resistant. Proper spacing to allow for air circulation and good pruning practices will also reduce problems.

A lilac planted in the spring of 1986 failed to leaf out this spring. The reader wonders why.

Lilacs should overwinter if they have been healthy the previous year. Failure to grow could be due to inadequate root development caused by a planting location with poor drainage.

If lilacs are not properly planted or do not receive sufficient water the first year, they may not survive the winter.

When ready to plant, make sure your lilacs are healthy. Prepare the soil by digging it out at least 6 inches deeper than required and at least half as wide again as needed to accommodate the soil ball. If the soil is poor, discard old soil and use good top soil along with extra organic matter. If the soil appears to be good when digging the hole, add up to one-quarter of volume of peat moss or other suitable organic matter, mixing it in well.

Do not fertilize because it will burn the roots. Fill the hole and firm the soil so that when the plant is placed in, it will be at the same level as previously planted or slightly higher if drainage is desirable.

Proceed to fill in around the plant to the halfway point and firm the soil. Water it well to settle the soil. If the soil has drained, continue to finish filling the hole. Mulch it well and rewet.

Water as needed during periods of drought until plants are well-established.

This is an excellent time to start biennials from seed for flowering in the garden next spring—Sweet William is a favorite.

Seeds should be planted immediately and may be sown directly in the garden if you have an area that is free of weeds. Add additional organic matter to the soil and work it in well. Rake the soil until it is relatively smooth, then with a trowel or hoe make a thin narrow furrow and proceed to sow the seed thinly along the furrow.

Cover the seeds lightly. Then water with a fine mist to thoroughly wet the soil to a depth of at least 2 inches. Avoid washing the soil.

Keep the soil relatively moist each day until good germination occurs. Once seedlings are large enough to handle, transplant them to a new area where they can be placed far enough apart for growth to continue. In late fall, they may be moved to their permanent location, where they should flower next spring.

Do you have problems with your garden or household plants? If so, direct your questions to: The Garden Spot, St. Louis News Service, 1215 Fern Ridge Parkway, Suite 108, St. Louis, Mo. 63141.

Brush up on painting

The quality of your interior painting project may hinge on the steps you take beforehand. Kevin Kelleher of Homequity Inc. offers some advice:

•Select the right paint for the job. If you have questions, ask your hardware dealer about the advantages or disadvantages of the various types of paint suitable for your particular project, if primer or a sealer coat is necessary, if one or two coats will do and the amount of paint you will need.

•Before choosing your paint, study the colors in natural as well as artificial light.

•Neutral color paints are good choices for walls. They harmonize with almost any decor.

•It may be necessary to clean your walls to remove the natural household film that can build up in kitchens and adjacent rooms. Use a household detergent and warm water. Rinse well. Caution: When sponging plaster board walls, do not use too much water; thoroughly wring out your sponge.

•Patch cracks with spackle. Let dry, and then sand.

•Remove curtains, drapes and wall hangings.

•Remove hardware from windows, cupboards, doors and other surfaces, or carefully cover it with masking tape.

•Move furniture to the center of the room and cover with a drop cloth.

•Protect the floor area you are working on by covering it with a drop cloth.

Design book offers indoor, outdoor aid

A new book on the ins and outs of decorating can be a useful tool in making both rooms and gardens bloom. The publication offers design advice for both the indoors and the outdoors. Called "Creative Home Design," it's written by decorator-author Nonie Niesewand and gardening expert David Stevens. It's part of the home decorating series from Conrads, published by Little, Brown and Co.

The more than 300 pages include photographs, drawings and step-by-step diagrams that can help your house and garden look their best. It also offers checklists and explanations of what you'll need to achieve each effect.

For example, it throws some light on the way light can change the look of a room.

Confident Mansfield cites his experience

By David Rocks
P-R/I Washington bureau

WASHINGTON — Mike Mansfield wants his boss's job for his birthday.

Next March 15 Mansfield, who is Democratic Rep. Mel Price's top aide, will turn 34. That day is also the date of the Illinois primary election. Price is retiring and Mansfield will be seeking Price's seat in the U.S. House of Representatives.

If elected, Mansfield would be following in Price's footsteps in more ways than one. Before being elected in 1984, Price himself was administrative assistant to Rep. Edwin Schaefer (D).

Mansfield announced his candidacy last weekend in Belleville, at a fund raiser where he received about $2,500 in campaign contributions.

While that may seem a paltry sum when compared to the $250,000-plus raised by the other declared candidate in the race, St. Clair County Board Chairman Jerry Costello, Mansfield says he is not intimidated by his opponent's campaign war chest.

"If I was, I wouldn't be running. Or, if I was, I wouldn't be getting your message out; there's no doubt about that. But we're talking about the primary," Mansfield said in an interview Tuesday. "You can spend every dime you raise in the primary because, let's face it, whoever wins that primary, the (funding) floods that open."

Some political observers say that the real battle for Price's seat will be fought in the primary in the 1st District, a Democratic stronghold which includes Alton, Granite City, East St. Louis and Belleville.

However, Republican Robert Gaffner came within less than 1,000 votes of upsetting the veteran Democrat in November 1986, and Gaffner may run again. Price's advanced age was a factor in the race.

Mansfield, who has worked for Price for more than eight years, including two years in his current position as administrative assistant, says his experience with Price is the most important factor qualifying him for the seat.

"I know better than anyone running, what the issues are in different segments of the district," Mansfield said. "Out of all the people running, who's the only one with any legislative experience?"

A lot of people get re-elected by running against Washington," he said. "But I'm from there (Belleville). I went to schools there. My family's there. I'll probably end up going back to live there, no matter what."

Mansfield says he has learned much of what he knows from Price, a 43-year veteran of the House, and that, if Mansfield is elected, his policies would change little from Price's, especially in terms of social programs and projects for the district.

Timber theft now will be a felony

A new law, Senate Bill 1494, amends the Timber Buyers Licensing Act to stiffen the penalty for timber theft from a Class B misdemeanor to a Class A felony.

The bill also requires that all fees and fines generated by the Act be deposited in the Illinois Forestry Development Fund.

On defense, Mansfield said he would probably be more moderate than the hawkish Price, who was chairman of the Armed Services Committee for 10 years before being ousted by Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., in 1985.

"I think we should move very slowly on SDI (Strategic Defense Initiative), so we don't waste money on it," Mansfield said. "I think we should be very careful with super weapons. I think we spend a lot of money on these super weapons and we can get carried away."

On Central American policy, Mansfield would not commit himself to being for or against aid to the Nicaraguan rebels, but indicated that he would be inclined to oppose aid if a real threat to U.S. security cannot be established.

"I don't trust the administration when it comes to Central America," Mansfield said. "Why should we?"

Mansfield grew up in Belleville, and received his bachelor and master degrees from Southern Illinois University at Carbondale. While working for Price in Illinois, he taught political science and history at Belleville Area College.

As Price's top aide, Mansfield said he is not able to campaign as much as he believes he needs to, and said he plans to take a leave of absence from his job in the next two months.

New judge named to court

Circuit Judge Joseph Cunningham of St. Clair County has been named an Illinois Supreme Court justice, replacing Justice Joseph Goldenhersh.

Cunningham, 63, of Fairview Heights, has 22 years of experience on the bench, beginning as a magistrate in East St. Louis.

He was appointed by the Illinois Supreme Court as a circuit judge of the 20th Judicial Circuit in 1972 and was elected in 1974, 1980 and 1986.

He was scheduled to be sworn in Wednesday in Springfield.

Cunningham will serve on the Supreme Court until December 1988, when an elected justice will take office. That justice will be elected in November of next year.

Goldenhersh, 72, of Belleville resigned effective Sept. 12 due to health reasons. He suffers from Parkinson's Disease and had been absent from oral arguments of the court in recent months.

The justices set a precedent by appointing an active judge. The court's tradition, for at least the past 20 years, has been to recall a retired judge to fill vacancies, said William Madden, deputy director of the administrative office of the courts. The last four vacancies were filled in that manner, Madden said.

Granite City attorney William Schooley had said he would be interested in Goldenhersh's post.

Earlier warnings on chemical spills

Senate Bill 792 requires the Illinois Emergency Services and Disaster Agency (ESDA) to notify residents within 48 hours of a significant chemical release within their area.

Notification is currently set at seven days.

The new law takes effect Jan. 1, 1988.

New woman judge hopes to be problem-solver

As she looks forward to serving as the 3rd Judicial Circuit's newest associate judge, Ellar Duff-Williams sees no barriers ahead because she is black and a woman.

"In the 1960s, a judge is a judge," she said. "I'll just be a judge and will receive the same complaints and gripes other judges get."

Reflecting on her jump to the other side of the bench, Duff-Williams, 38, credits education with paving the way. "Education was emphasized when I was at home," she said. "When I told my mother of the appointment, she was very happy. Of course, she said, 'I told you education would pay off. You just have to be patient.'"

A native of Missouri, Duff-Williams graduated from the University of Missouri at Columbia with a bachelor's and master's degree in education. She stayed on to teach at the University's Education Department for six years.

As she discovered more acquaintances having problems with the legal system, she became interested in the legal profession and returned to the university to enter its law school.

"The biggest problem people had was they didn't know their rights," said Duff-Williams. "I was a teacher, so I was interested in educating people about their rights — property rights as well as criminal."

It was her interest in public legal work that led her to Alton in 1981. She received a fellowship named for Reginald Heber Smith, another attorney dedicated to community legal work.

The fellowship paid her salary while she worked for the Land of Lincoln Legal Foundation. The fellowship was renewed for a second year. After that, the Foundation offered her a staff position.

"I enjoyed what I was doing and the people I was working with, so I decided to accept the position," she said.

Serving as a judge was never a goal she had set for herself. When the opportunity arose because of the retirement of Associate Judge Clayton R. Williams, she began to test the waters. She was one of seven who applied for the position.

"When this opportunity came up, I was looking for something different that would still serve the community interest," she said.

After receiving positive responses from judges, she felt she had the qualifications for the job.

"And I care about people," she added. Duff-Williams is divorced and the mother of two sons, Kehven, a junior at Alton High School, and Shaun, a preschooler.

"Kehven knows of the appointment and he's pretty excited about it," said Duff-Williams. "Regardless of what I do, I'm still mommy to Shaun."

Because of the time commitment of her position with Land of Lincoln, she has found little time for active involvement in community affairs.

"This job takes 50 to 60 hours a week, so I haven't had time for community work. And basically I'm a low-key person. I do the things I do because I want to, and I enjoy doing them — not for the glory or praise."

Court decision hinders trash disposal study

By Norma Mendoza
Staff affiliate

A study to find alternatives for the handling of solid waste has been only somewhat delayed by the recent decision of a Cook County judge, a county task force was told Sept. 10.

The judge ruled that fees financing the study are in part unconstitutional.

Representatives of East-West Gateway Coordinating Council, which is conducting the study, told the Madison County Solid Waste Management Task Force that the 21-month deadline for completion of the study has experienced "some slippage."

The judge ruled in favor of a group of trash haulers who challenged new county and state fees on the basis that not all haulers had to pay.

The fees, a dumping charge for the use of landfills, imposed by both the state and the counties of Madison and St. Clair, were to be used to find alternatives for handling solid waste here.

The study, in two phases, was expected to be completed by April 1, 1989.

Eight landfills in Metro East are in Madison and St. Clair counties. Monroe County has no landfills, but chose to cooperate with the other two counties in efforts to control landfill operations.

Lewis Krause, chairman of the task force, said it faces a monumental problem when considering what to do about solid waste.

"The public doesn't even begin to realize what a problem we've got," Krause said. "We have a lot of educating to do."

Krause said the major problem is what to do with trash composed of plastics.

"We created this problem; now we have to solve it. We've got a job nobody wants, but we've got enough guts to tackle it," he said.

Frank Boyne, a St. Clair County Board member, said a study done in St. Clair convinced him that landfills will "always be needed."

Electric 'wheeling' studies set

SPRINGFIELD — Legislation requiring a study of increasing competitive open market sales of electricity in Illinois was signed by Gov. James Thompson Sept. 16.

It requires two state agencies to study the potential effects of the practice, known as "wheeling."

Under wheeling, the local utility would still get a transportation fee for moving the power over its lines if it was generated by another utility.

Opponents of Illinois Power Company's summer rates have advocated increased use of wheeling so communities in IP's service territory can obtain cheaper power from other utilities.

Wheeling has also attracted substantial interest in the Chicago area, where Commonwealth Edison Co. charges among the highest electric rates in the U.S. One municipality in the Chicago suburbs with its own local distribution lines is wheeling power from a Wisconsin utility now.

Wheeling of natural gas is now a common practice in Illinois because of federal regulation and court decisions increasing competition for that fuel.

The bill signed by the governor requires the Illinois Commerce Commission to report back to the legislature by Jan. 1 on wheeling of electricity.

The study is to include analyzing the effect of wheeling on electric rates, on rural electric cooperatives and on public utilities' obligation to provide service in their assigned areas.

Dixon eyes housing, flood, campaign bills

By David Rocks
P-R/A Washington bureau

WASHINGTON — Sen. Alan Dixon watched with dismay as a bill that would change Senate campaign financing died last week, but the Illinois Democrat says he will try to resurrect the measure later this year.

The bill, a pet project of Dixon's, was the object of a Republican filibuster that Senate Democratic leaders failed to break seven times this year. That was a record for attempts to shut off debate since current Senate rules came into effect in 1917.

Faced with rapidly escalating campaign costs — up from an average of $600,000 in 1976 to $3 million in 1986 — senators have sought to place limits on spending and provide for some form of public financing, probably funded by a tax on checks similar to the system now used for presidential campaigns.

The latest vote was 51-44 in favor of cloture, largely along partisan lines. It was nine votes short of the 60 needed to end the filibuster. Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., said he would drop the issue for the remainder of the year. But Dixon said in an interview Thursday evening that he wants the Senate to consider the measure one more time.

"We're going to return to this again," Dixon said. "Some of us, including Sen. David Boren, D-Okla., and myself and others have been talking about trying to revisit it again this year." Dixon said the bill already has undergone major changes to make it more palatable to its Republican opponents, and that Democrats would consider further changes.

"That bill has been modified to the extent that I would argue that it's not a public financing bill at all," Dixon said. Rather, he said, it now stands as a bill that would set voluntary limits on campaign expenditures and then provide some public financing for opponents of candidates who exceed those limits.

Dixon also noted the Democrats may be prepared to accept a Republican request to allow higher expenditures in states where there are large numbers of registered Democrats and few Republicans.

He did not say, however, when the bill might come up again, noting that the Senate must first deal with a host of other pressing issues, such as the defense authorization bill, the budget, and the nomination of Judge Robert Bork to be a Supreme Court justice.

Republicans have argued that the Democratic bills do not tackle the major problem with current election law, which they claim is unaccounted contributions, so-called "soft money."

On the Bork question, Dixon said he remains uncommitted and that he hopes the entire Senate has the chance to vote on the nominee.

"I would not support a filibuster on this question," Dixon said. "I think we ought to give the guy a vote — an up or down vote."

Dixon also commented on issues concerning Downstate Illinois:

"He said he will try to restore to the defense authorization bill currently being considered by the Senate $9.7 million for 100 housing units for military families at the St. Louis Area Support Center in Granite City. The money was in the House version of the bill but was taken out of the Senate bill."

"Dixon was not aware of $1 million earmarked for flood control projects in East St. Louis that the House had approved in its energy and water development bill, but that was removed from the Senate bill."

"The senator reiterated his support for joint civilian and military use of Scott Air Force Base in Belleville, but warned that any plans to convert the base to a full-service commercial airport may have to proceed slowly."

"I think that the cargo plane features of it we can do very shortly," Dixon said. "The whole question of passenger service as an alternative to Lambert (St. Louis International Airport) is a lot stickier wicket, frankly, and I think we ought to move slowly on that so we don't get into arguments with the state of Missouri."

Illinois AFL-CIO endorse Costello

SPRINGFIELD — Illinois AFL-CIO President Peter Gibson has announced the group's endorsement of the candidacy of Jerry Costello for Congress in the 21st District.

The group's Executive Board adopted an endorsement recommendation from the delegates of the 21st District Committee on Political Education.

Costello is among those running for the Democratic nomination for the office currently held by Mel Price, who isn't running for re-election.

"Our board took the unusual action of an early endorsement because of the importance of this seat and because of the unique qualifications of candidate Costello," Gibson said.

"We are convinced he can do the best job of representing the 55,000 AFL-CIO members and their families living in the 21st District. He will make an excellent successor to longtime friend Cong. Price."

"There are a number of good candidates in this race," said Buddy Davis, district director for the United Steelworkers, "but the delegates of this committee voted overwhelmingly to recommend Costello for endorsement because they felt his youth, education and experience would make him an effective and influential congressional advocate for the 21st District for many years to come."

Volunteers sought to aid deaf people

New volunteers are needed for Contact's Telecommunications Service for the Deaf.

A deaf person cannot use the telephone without special equipment and/or special help from someone who can hear. Contact-St. Louis has been helping deaf people make phone calls since 1974.

In 1986, Contact helped make over 63,000 calls for deaf people. A deaf person can communicate via teletype equipment with people who have similar equipment.

The volunteers serve as intermediaries, reading to a hearing person what the deaf person is typing in to Contact, and typing back to the deaf person what the hearing person replies by voice.

Training begins Oct. 15. For more information and an application, call (314) 771-8181, Monday through Friday, 9 a.m.-5 p.m.

We wish them success. What they're undertaking is complex, costly, and time-consuming.

Visit brings papal video

By Harry Hamm
Staff affiliate

The day before Pope John Paul II landed in Miami to begin his visit to the United States, former actor, clothing manufacturer, studio executive, and movie producer Robert Evans wined into the area hyping a 42-minute video tape he had just completed called "The Power of Faith."

The tape is, as Evans describes it, "a romantic chronicle of the Pope's life. The only spoken words will be a benediction that the Pope will do at the end."

Evans noted that the tape was produced by him in conjunction with the archbishop of New Orleans, Philip Hannan, who was to present his Holiness with a copy of the video when the Pope stopped off in that city. Evans said that he paid all expenses incurred in the producing of the video tape.

According to Robert Evans, the video will be distributed by Leade businessman Leslie Figel. Figel owns a company called Magic Video that, among other things, specializes in the distribution of specialty video tapes.

"I cancelled two films to do this tape," Evans told me. "My lawyer was so upset he fired me. I don't care. Some people think I'm crazy. It took me a year to do it. Any money I make from the tape is going into the foundation I plan to set up called The Brotherhood of Man."

While Evans was the head of Paramount pictures, the studio rose from the brink of bankruptcy to become the most successful studio in Hollywood. Evans resigned from Paramount in 1976, the same year the studio's films captured 43 Academy Award nominations, a record that remains unbroken. Films that Evans brought under the Paramount banner during his tenure included "Chinatown," "Godfather," "Godfather II," "Love Story," "Barefoot in the Park," "The Odd Couple" and "Rosemary's Baby."

"I've always looked to make people movies," says Evans. "It's very difficult to find people stories. I don't know how to make hardware movies. I couldn't make a film like 'Star Wars.' I wish I could."

Evans' film fortunes have not been good in recent years. His last major film as a producer, "Cotton Club," was his biggest failure.

"I'm not a rich man now," Evans said. "I put all the money I had into 'The Power of Faith.'"

Marketing plans for Robert Evans' tape "The Power of Faith" are incomplete.

One man's dream created Italy's golden age of flight

By Rita Cipali
Smithsonian News Service

Here's a quiz designed to stump the best of trivia buffs. What nation introduced the airplane as a weapon of war? Built the first strategic bomber? Built the fastest biplane? Made the first mass crossing of the Atlantic in 1933?

If your answer is Italy, congratulations. It's a little-known fact, but through World War II, the Italians ranked among the world's leaders in aviation.

"The Italians do not get enough credit for early aviation advances," claims Karl Schneide, curatorial assistant for flight material at the Smithsonian's National Air and Space Museum in Washington, D.C. "With a combination of ingenuity, foresight and skillful aircraft and engine designs, this nation made significant contributions to the field."

One of Italy's most influential aviation pioneers was Gianni Caproni, an aircraft designer and visionary who became a nearly legendary figure in his day.

This year marks the 100th anniversary of Caproni's birth. Born at Nussone d'Arco in the Alpine region of northern Italy, he studied civil engineering in Munich, electrical engineering in Liege and aeronautics in Paris.

His interest in aviation dated from his student days when, as a frequent visitor to Munich's Deutsches Museum, he was fascinated by an exhibit of early soaring gliders built by German aviation pioneer Otto Lilienthal.

After Lilienthal's death in 1896 in a glider accident, European aviation went into a decline until 1908, when Wilbur Wright made his first overseas tour. Influenced by the Wrights, European aviation pioneers recast their flight research and within a year were well on their way to surpassing their American colleagues.

The thrilling 1909 flight of Louis Bleriot across the English Channel — the first in a heavier-than-air craft (using an Italian engine) — was a further spur in Europe.

It was in 1909 that Caproni, now back in Italy, designed his first aircraft, a single-engine, twin-propeller biplane called the CA 1. The next year, the CA 1 flew about 600 feet before crash landing.

"Despite the inauspicious beginning, that flight marked the advent of aviation in Italy," notes Schneide, who is curator of a new exhibit on Caproni opening Oct. 10 at the Air and Space Museum. Undaunted, Caproni built half a dozen successful variations of the CA 1 during the next few months.

In 1911, Caproni and a partner launched their own aircraft factory as well as a highly successful flying school for military and civilian pilots — the first in Italy near Milan. The aircraft produced by the Caproni Company quickly became competitors in air meets and record flights throughout Europe.

One particularly successful design, the CA 9 monoplane, set several world speed and endurance records in its class. "The Italian Army was so impressed," Schneide says, "that it eventually ordered 200 CA 9s — which became Italy's first mass-produced military aircraft."

The CA 9 also had the distinction of carrying aloft Italy's first paying passenger on April 24, 1912.

A front-page story in the Gazzetta di Venezia described the flight and, in a burst of patriotism, proclaimed the CA 9 to be an aircraft "that would put Italy at the fore of a worldwide force in aerial transportation." Schneide describes the flight in a more down-to-earth fashion: "The pilot buzzed a number of historic buildings, and housewives were reported to be fainting in the streets."

Successful Caproni designs continued to capture records. In 1912, the CA 11 secured world records in its class for distance and speed, and the CA 12 broke the world records for speed and distance.

Although there were triumphs, the mustachioed Italian designer and his partners were plagued with problems — among these, government indifference, money shortages and, for a time, typhoid fever, which kept Caproni in bed for two months. The flying school closed and the aircraft factory was purchased by the state, which charged Caproni with mismanagement.

Through it all, he designed plane after plane. "Caproni was a shrewd businessman who was able to convince others to back him when he needed it most," Schneide says.

The years prior to World War I saw many technical advances in airplanes and a growing interest in aviation.

In 1911, Schneide says, "Italy became the first nation to introduce the aircraft as a weapon of war," when the Italians dropped a 2-kilogram bomb on Turkish troops resting at an oasis in what is now Libya.

World War I inevitably created a demand for aircraft especially designed for war purposes, with unusual power, great range and efficient armament. In 1913, Caproni designed one of his masterpieces: the CA 30, a three-engine strategic bomber years ahead of its time in design and application.

The CA 30 (and its subsequent versions) was one of the most powerful and efficient heavy bombers and transport aircraft during World War I. The design enabled two pilots to sit side-by-side with dual controls while an observer rode in front.

The aircraft, with its full arsenal of bombs, could withstand heavy punishment from both enemy interceptors and ground fire, and Austro-Hungarian infantry soon learned to respect the huge, slow-moving bombers.

Caproni's early bombers, built in concert with Italian aviation advocate Gen. Giulio Douhet, also helped prove his far-sighted theory of the importance of strategic bombing (bombing aimed at the enemy's industrial strength and urban centers).

Caproni was an adviser to Gen. John J. Pershing, commander of the American forces in Europe, and is credited with giving him the idea of strategic bombing. American military officials, impressed with Caproni's designs, decided to put his bombers into production at plants in the States. But the war ended, and only five Capronis were built in America.

During a tumultuous lifetime, Caproni patented more than 160 aircraft designs and built 180 different airplanes. But Caproni's place in aviation history is assured for other reasons as well.

Warriors 'breeze' past Blue Devils

By Dave Whaley
Executive sports editor

QUINCY — Ever wonder what a soccer game would be like at San Francisco's Candlestick Park?

And idea of what it could be like was played out Saturday at Quincy's Flinn Stadium. The Warriors and the Quincy Blue Devils contended with winds blowing up to 15 mph. And those gusts eventually helped decide the game.

Warrior goalkeeper Matt Krekovich, punting with that stiff wind early in the third quarter, let fly with one that went about three-quarters the length of the field. Troy Adamitis flicked it to Scott Stone who sent it into the bottom right-hand corner for a 1-0 Warrior victory.

Granite City came away with its fifth straight victory and is 6-1 on the season. They controlled a Quincy team which never really had a great chance to score in the game.

"I think this might be the best game we have had all year in terms of ball possession," said Warrior coach Gene Baker. "That's what I usually look at to determine how well we did."

And ball control was not the easiest thing on this windy afternoon. It sometimes made passing the ball — other than very short distances — very difficult. The result was a sometimes sloppy first half.

"The wind was a factor in the game," Baker said. "And, it picked up as the game went on. It really made a difference on the throw-ins, the corner kicks and the free kicks."

The Warriors controlled play for the most part, especially when they were aiming at the north goal and going with the wind in the first quarter. Herb

Heaton and Troy Adamitis had the best chances in the quarter,

but Blue Devil keeper Scott Larson was equal to the task.

The Blue Devils, not quite as strong as they have been in past years, picked up their play a little in the second quarter when they got the wind, but the Warrior backline of Jeff Grote, Mike

Lane, Kirk Mills and Derek Wilkinson kept them at bay. One bad clearing pass gave Steve

Barry a good chance halfway through the quarter, but Kreko-ch came out to beat him to the ball.

It was Krekovich who started the scoring play at the 43:00 mark. He would have had an assist, in fact, if two assists were awarded as they are in hockey. But his long punt went to Adamitis who sent Stone into

Wallace should bounce back

The home opener for the Warrior football team was not a pretty sight. They had played reasonably well in the first two games on the road and gained a split.

But things went from bad to worse in a big hurry in the 28-0 loss to Belleville West. The Maroons showed complete dominance from start to finish and exposed some Warrior weaknesses that weren't quite as evident in a 10-0 win at Cahokia and a 14-0 loss to Normandy.

In those games, the Warriors were able to come up with some turnovers to keep the opposition from scoring. But Belleville West only coughed it up once and the Maroons were able to control the ball for large chunks of time and eat up yardage.

"I thought we had a much better defense than this," said Warrior coach Ron Yates. "But they were just much better and quicker than we were."

The Warriors had a chance to recover some fumbles, but the Maroons were able to recover them first.

Offensively, the Warriors are hardly explosive. They have to rely on Len Whiteside, Terry Stanley and Kevin Sutphin to grind out yardage. They also have to keep mistakes to a minimum. Seven turnovers is hardly a minimum.

They fumbled a punt and three other times. And Joe Wal-and relatively inexperienced Warriors, it was just too much.

It was not a good night for Wallace. He got his first start in the home opener and the offense didn't exactly light things up. Joe didn't look terrific, but he could hardly be singled out for any blame.

DON DETERDING lectures the Lady Warrior volleyball team on some strategy, and it must be paying off. Granite City won its fourth straight match in the home opener against Wood River on Monday and was ready for a Southwestern Conference showdown with unbeaten Belleville West on Tuesday. Both teams were 2-0 in conference play going into the match.

Bears strike late to clip Stars

By Gary King
Correspondent

GRANITE CITY — The Granite City Campus Stars left hooked, right-crossed, upturned and basically banged the Washington University junior varsity soccer team into the proverbial ropes for 89 minutes on Saturday.

The only problem was that their game with the JV Bears was 90 minutes long. And what happened in that final minute was enough to make Stars coach Larry Petri feel like his pleasure cruise had suddenly veered into the Persian Gulf. The Bears tied the game in the final seconds and went on to a 3-2 overtime win.

With under a minute left on the clock, the Bears' Rick Cadara capitalized on a Doug Novy misplay deep in the Stars end and snuck a chip shot past GCC goalkeeper Scott Clynes, sending the contest into overtime tied at 2-1.

Once into the overtime period, the Bears suddenly went from the little train that thought it could to a runaway freight train that did. With their second loss in as many efforts, GCC dropped to 3-2-1.

"It was obviously a game we could've won, but obviously one we let slip away and turn from a win into a loss," Petri said. "This just goes to show that you can play 89 good minutes of soccer, but you still can't afford to make big mistakes with the game on the line."

And the big mistake was, indeed, the animal that bit GCC late in Saturday's contest.

On the go-ahead Wash. U. goal with 2:37 left in the first overtime period, Novy fouled John Weinfidel less than 15 yards in front of Clynes. On his free kick opportunity, Weinfidel sent a Smith & Wesson bullet past the hapless Stars' keeper.

"It's got to be a tough day for (Novy)," Petri said. "He makes that mistake late in the game and then gets caught out of position. He played a good game...all except for those last few minutes.

Dave Oldane got a third tally for Wash. U. late in the contest and GCC's Sean Hammond drilled a shot past Bears' keeper Fred Isenburg, but the result was academic.

"Overall, I thought we played much better than we did Monday (in a 2-1 loss to East Central),"

Petri said. "But when you just keep letting a team hang around and hang around, then as soon as you let down, boom. They'll get you."

For the contest, Wash. U. outshot GCC 11-7. Clynes made eight saves to Isenburg's six. "We'll have to see how we respond to this loss," Petri said. "A loss isn't the most devastating thing in the world. We've just got to leave it behind and regroup."

They have allowed only three goals in seven games.

"I hope Matt (Krekovich) gets all-state honors this year," Baker said of the senior keeper who just missed last season. "He does a good job in all areas of his play and keeps the other players alert."

The shutout was the first Krekovich had all to himself this year. He shared time with Randy Chapman and others in the other four.

NOTES: The Warriors outshot the Blue Devils 18-7 and Larson made 11 saves to four for Krekovich. Granite City forced 12 corner kicks to four for Quincy. The fouls were 24 to Granite City and 18 to Quincy.

•Wallace

Wallace is just a sophomore, and not many 10th graders get a starting quarterback job, especially in the Southwestern Conference. So he obviously has some ability. But quarterback is a tough place to hide inexperience.

It's tough for any sophomore to step in at quarterback, but Wallace also had the added stigma of missing the first week of three-day practices last month. His family was on vacation and he got a late start. For that reason Joe was ineligible to dress out for the first game at Cahokia.

But he was ready to go the next week and replaced Chris Bartling at the controls in the second quarter at Normandy. He struggled until the end when he completed a couple of nice passes to Marvin Weber and Jim Stout to put the Warriors on the doorstep. Unfortunately, Stout fumbled as he was tackled and the rally died.

Joe Wallace is a good kid and has a little experience behind him. Even though he is just starting his sophomore year, he has already been thrown into the spotlight once before. As a freshman, he suddenly found himself as the starting catcher on one of the best high school baseball teams in the area.

He took the job from Dave Bumper in early May and made great strides. The Warriors came within one game of the state finals, so Joe must have been doing something right. Outside of pitching and possibly shortstop, the catcher is the most important player on the field. Bob Stegmeyer entrusted the job to a freshman and Joe held his own.

So Wallace is a corner. Unfortunately, he is playing in the shadow of Tim Hogan. Although Tim isn't very big, he cast a large shadow for whoever will succeed him at quarterback, shooting guard and center field.

It will be just as bad for those replacing Jamie Hogan at split end, small forward and second base.

This might not be a banner year for the football team, particularly if then can't get by the 3-0 Collinsville Kahoks this week. They face East St. Louis, Belleville Althoff and Springfield Griffin after that. So Wallace will get a very warm baptism of fire. But that's usually what a sophomore year at quarterback is like.

By the time he is a senior, Joe might be able to look back at the Belleville West game in his sophomore year and smile, although he isn't now. Seniors who are star quarterbacks and catchers can do that.

"Scott is a dangerous player at all times," Baker said. "He is extremely quick and should be a good scorer. And the other parts of his game are very good."

Dan Wilson of the Warriors drew a yellow card for getting too close to the kicker on a free kick in the final seconds, but the Warriors cleared the ball out of danger to preserve the victory, their fifth shutout of the year.

The second place team was Jim Scherrills, John Kretovich, Steve Gossett and Scott Loftus with a 62. Second place was worth $192. The third place team was Bill Duncan, Rich Rea, Don Williams and Ning Candelone. Third place was worth $96.

There were two skins worth $420 each. The team of Hunt, Burden, Francis and Leara had one and the team of Greg Johnson, Bob Orusco, Rosita Mallow and Mary Nelson had the other.

The first place trophy on the ladies division was won by the team of Janet Harris, Elsie Rodell, Mert Briscoe and Carol Butler. Second place in the ladies division was won by Ann Nelson, Ginny Warfield, Lorraine Butler and Jackie Reinagle.

The balance of the tournament proceeds was donated to the Heart Fund along with a personal donation of $150 from Janet Harris. The grant will receive a check for $508 in memory of Frank Harris.

BARB DAVIS of the Heart Fund accepts a check for $508 from Janet Harris. The money was raised at the Frank Harris Memorial Golf Tournament.

The tournament committee thanks the following for their efforts and donations: Arlington Golf Course and staff; Vesel Distributing Inc.; Fred Painter of Smokey Joe's Tavern; Jim Eisenbeis of Granite City Steel for the ladies trophies; Jack Mitchell of Granite City Steel for photography; and Janet Harris and her friends for doing all the hard work.

It's a small world

Valarie and Mark Adler are married and live in Chicago. Valarie is a rabid Cardinal baseball fan while her hubby is just as much a die-in-the-wool Mets fan. They are both practicing lawyers in the Windy City, but they aren't with the same legal firm.

They have a mutual love of baseball and their jobs to draw them closer together. Before Valarie became pregnant nine months ago they rarely missed a Cub game at Wrigley Field when the Mets or Cardinals came to town.

A few weeks ago, on a typically sunny and windy day at Wrigley, the young couple was in the stands as the Cubs and Mets went at it. Mark was pulling for the Mets, of course, and Valarie was giving her full support to the Cubs. A Chicago victory would help out the young mother-to-be's Cardinals.

Mark wasn't too pleased with his wife rooting against his beloved Mets, but he was more concerned about his wife being at the game because she was due any day to deliver their first baby. He begged her not to go to the game, but you know how Cardinal fans are when their team is making a run for the pennant.

The Cubs won and helped Valarie's Cardinals maintain their division lead. And the baby, a bouncing baby boy named Dave, was born the following Monday.

him. Talk about a proud grandfather.

And talk about a small world. I had a detail to check out on the young couple, so I asked my neighbor, Anna May Harris, to help clear it up for me. I assumed that Anna May, whose husband was the late Illinois state representative Curly, might be related to the family.

"Curly and Jess weren't related," Anna May said. "Jess was his barber for 35 years. And they were dear friends."

For many years Curly was one of the state's most powerful men. He was chairman of the Illinois State House Appropriations Committee, which controlled most of the public spending in the state.

Curly Harris was probably the one man most responsible for the funding and building of SUE — along with John Rendleman.

It turns out Anna May's granddaughter, Leanne, now living in California — was Valarie's best friend. Valarie and Leanne were vacationing in Chicago one summer and went swimming in Lake Michigan and met a couple of good looking guys one of whom turned out to be Mark.

Small world, huh?

9th 800 series puts Choat in ABC book

Randy Choat of Granite City has earned a spot in the American Bowling Congress record book.

Choat became only the fifth bowler in the nation to roll nine 800 series when he accomplished the feat recently. Choat has rolled most of his 800's at Bowland in Granite City, according to a spokesman at Bowland.

The spokesman said the ABC will put bowlers in the record books after their ninth 800 series. He said Choat has been doing it about once a year since he got his first one in 1979.

Release procedure clarified by park

The Granite City Park District would like to clarify the procedure for releasing players in the boys' baseball and girls' softball programs.

A child may be released from his or her team in one of two ways between Sept. 1 and Dec. 31:

- 1) A player release form should be completed, signed by both the parent and manager submitted to the park office and then approved by the Rules and Protest Committee, or

- 2) A player release form should be completed which indicates the reason for the release signed by either the parent or manager and approved by the Rules and Protest Committee. After a decision is rendered by the Rules and Protest Committee, the parties involved have 30 days to contest the decision.

Further explanation can be obtained by calling the Wilson Park Office at 877-3059.

Hockey association begins registration

Since Sept. 1, the Granite City Hockey Association has been registering children for the 1987-88 season.

To be eligible, boys and girls must be between the ages of 4 and 15 and reside in Madison County. For a $25 refundable deposit, complete sets of equipment (not including skates or sticks) are available to children under 10.

For more information, call 877-6758, 288-5184, 258-1155 or 877-2882.
